National Organization of Research Development Professionals

Holly J. Falk-Krzesinski NORDP Service Award
2015 Recipient

Anne Windham, Ph.D.
NORDP Board of Directors 2012-2015
NORDP Secretary 2012-2014
Associate Dean of the Faculty
Brown University

Anne Windham has been a member of NORDP since its early days and has a distinguished career in Research Development. As the Director of Research Opportunities at Brown University, she worked with faculty, staff, and key university administrators to increase institutional research competitiveness and provide judicious stewardship to limited submission and other research development programs. Anne was elected to the board in 2012 and served as Secretary for two years. She has been an incredibly organized secretary, bringing steady and wise professionalism to this office and keeping her fellow board members on track. Most importantly, however, she was an early founder of NORDP Northeast, helping to galvanize this regional group and developing a new model for NORDP member engagement and development. It is in this latter role that she has helped not only to build a solid foundation for the organization but also to transform NORDP for the future. Anne's tireless devotion to NORDP is not as well-known as that of some others, but she has really revolutionized our possibilities for growth. She is a true leader for research development—as well as a wonderful colleague with whom it is such a pleasure to serve and work.

The National Organization of Research Development Professionals (NORDP) Service Award was established in 2011 and named for the organization's founding President, Holly J. Falk-Krzesinski, Ph.D., who was the first recipient. The award, voted on by the Board of Directors, is given annually to a NORDP Member in recognition of outstanding service to the organization and to the Research Development profession. The honor is recognized with a commemorative plaque and free registration to the next year's NORDP Research Development Conference.
